

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Systems and methods for providing interactive printing that includes displaying and selecting print or fax jobs on a front panel of a printer device without the print job being despoiled to the printer device. In an interactive printing environment, a print job is initiated
5 without specifying a particular printing device. The print job is stored at a client computing device or at a printer server, and the job data (non-print data) corresponding to the print job is stored at the printer server. Job data is obtained at a printing device from the printer server and selectively displayed on the front panel of the printing device. Upon selection of the job data at the printing device, the corresponding print job is despoiled to the printing device
10 from the printer server or client computing device. The print job is then rendered at the printer device.

::ODMA\PCDOCS\DOCS\703179\1